Alleged killer wasn't rehired at mill: Ex-colleague

Nanaimo. Officials have declined to speculate what might have set off shooting at Western Forest Products

A man accused of murdering two of his former colleagues and attempting to kill two more at a Vancouver Island sawmill lost his job and wasn't rehired when the mill restarted, a former co-worker says.

Kevin Addison, 47, is facing two charges each of first-degree murder and attempted murder following a shooting at a Western Forest Products sawmill in Nanaimo.

Police and the company have said little about Addison and have declined to speculate about what might have motivated the shooting, which police say started in the mill's parking lot on Wednesday morning and continued into the facility's offices.

Rex Boden is currently employed at the mill and remembers working with Addison, whom he described as friendly.

"He didn't get hired back when the rest of us got hired back," Boden said Thursday, after a meeting between workers and company officials at a hotel in Nanaimo.

"That's all I know."

Addison appeared in court Thursday afternoon. The man, who is tall with a medium build, short brown hair and a full beard, stood silently in court as he was ordered back into custody until his next appearance on May 13.

The mill shut down in 2008. It re-opened in 2010 with a much smaller contingent of workers, setting off a long-running dispute between the union and the company over severance pay for the workers who weren't called back.

Neither the police nor the mill have suggested the labour climate had anything to do with the shooting.

Boden otherwise declined to fill in the many blanks about Addison, who has been in jail since he was arrested shortly after the shooting.

"Sorry," Boden said, speaking softly, when asked about his former co-worker, "I can't."

Michael Lunn, 62, and Fred McEachern, 53, were killed in the shooting, while court documents identify the surviving victims as Earl Kelly and Tony Sudar.

Hit-and-run driver gets 7.5 years for two women's deaths

'He didn't say sorry.'
Victims' families can't forgive Cory Sater

NICK WELLS
vancouver@metronews.ca

Families of Lorraine Cruz and Charlene Reaveley wept outside New Westminster law courts and shared a hug as the case surrounding the death of their loved ones came to a close on Wednesday morning.

A B.C. Supreme Court judge handed a seven-and-a-half year jail sentence to a drunk driver who fled the scene after killing the two women in Port Coquitlam back in 2011.

Cory Sater struck and killed Cruz, 26, and Reaveley, 30, a mother of four, while driving home along Lougheed Highway after leaving a Port Coquitlam pub in February 2011, leaving the scene before police could arrive.

At the time, he was on probation and banned from consuming alcohol and didn't have a valid driver's licence.

He was found guilty of impaired driving causing death and dangerous driving causing death in the deaths of Reaveley and Cruz. Court heard he consumed six double rye-and-Cokes and two Jaeger bombs at a bar before getting behind the wheel in February 2011.

Outside the courtroom, the families of both victims were satisfied with the outcome, but admit they can't forgive him.

"He didn't actually apologize. He didn't say sorry to the court," said Dan Reaveley, Charlene's husband. "I think he feels sorry that he's stepping away from his children, but he's not really too concerned about our lives."

Lorraine Cruz's sister Vanessa echoed those sentiments.

"It's not going to change the fact that my sister is gone forever," she said. "I hope this serves as a lesson to everyone."

During the sentencing, Sater sat hunched forward in the dock letting out a small sob as Justice Williams read out the nine-and-a-half-year sentence, which was reduced to seven and a half years. Crown counsel Chris McPherson said he was satisfied with the sentence despite their earlier desire to see Sater sentenced to at least eight years behind bars.

Rishi Gill, Sater's defence lawyer, had asked for a three-and-a-half-year sentence for his client.

Speaking afterwards, he admitted it was a difficult case but wouldn't comment on whether Sater might appeal.

Microsoft to open excellence centre in city

Mayor Gregor Robertson METRO

In a move Microsoft touts as proof positive of their commitment to Vancouver, the global tech giant has announced a new training and development centre in the heart of downtown which they say will lead to 400 new jobs.

Called the Microsoft Canada Excellence Centre, it's scheduled to open in late 2015 at the newly developed Pacific Centre, taking over the top two floors.

It's what Vancouver Mayor Gregor Robertson calls the icing on the cake.

"This is going to be a very exciting presence for Microsoft to be rolling out," he said. "And having the excellence centre here in Vancouver is a broader opportunity for the city to shine even more on the world stage."

Janet Kennedy, president of Microsoft Canada, said Vancouver will benefit from at least $181.4 million per year in direct, indirect and induced economic growth.

"Vancouver is a vibrant international hub for technology development with growth potential given its attractive location, amenities, reputation and proximity to top British Columbia universities and a highly educated and diverse workforce and population," she said.

"This investment will enable us to create a world-class centre of training and innovation that will have a positive ripple effect across the local, provincial and national economy."

Three charged in violent sex assaults dating back to 2012

Surrey RCMP charged three men in relation to two separate violent sex assaults dating back to 2012.

Police say Simranpreet Singh Dhillon, Sukhraj Sing Chahal and Gurjinder Sodha have been charged with 17 offences, ranging from unlawful confinement to sexual assault with a weapon.

According to police, the first incident can be traced back to Aug. 12, 2012, where a sex worker was driven to a secluded area along Colebrook Road and assaulted.

Two months later, a second sex worker was assaulted on Colebrook Road, police said. Potential victims or witnesses should call 604-599-0502. NICK WELLS/FOR METRO

The workers belong to 11 unions represented by the Facilities Bargaining Association, which says benefits, employment security and improved health and safety provisions are key issues in its contract talks.

The Hospital Employees Union, which covers 85 per cent of the workers, says the association is also seeking changes to the ambulance service so paramedics can provide enhanced patient care. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Streetfront. School trying to inspire and engage youth from difficult backgrounds

vancouver@metronews.ca

It may just look like some kids jogging down the street, but to them it's about finding a way to change their lives.

A group of 18 teenagers enrolled in Britannia Secondary's alternative education program, Streetfront, have given themselves an amazing goal: climbing Mount Kilimanjaro.

Trevor Stokes, their teacher, said it's not about a vacation — it's about taking kids from difficult backgrounds and showing them they can do anything they put their minds to.

"The kids that I teach, they don't go anywhere," Stokes said. "Like those mountains in North Van — some of them have never been to North Van. So the idea that they live in such tight, little confined parameters of their life, we need to expand that."

Streetfront was created by the Vancouver School Board to help students who struggle with traditional schooling.

Alannah Wong, 16, said before Streetfront she was in a bad stage of her life.

"I think this trip to Mount Kilimanjaro is not just sending a couple of kids ... to Africa," she said. "We're actually showing people you can rise up above whatever's going on in your life."

Vice-principal Andrew Schofield said the school is trying to raise $160,000 to send the 18 kids plus six adult escorts along for a trip to Mount Kilimanjaro, the Olduvai Gorge and the wildebeest migration in Serengeti National Park.

On top of that, these students would be able to volunteer at an AIDS orphanage and see first-hand the former slave market of Zanzibar.

Fundraising

Streetfront students are taking part in the BMO Vancouver Marathon this weekend to help raise funds for their trip.

- They will also be hosting several other charity runs under their Street2Peak Project banner. For more information, visit street-2peak.com.

Excitement and nerves are building for more than 16,000 runners who will hit the streets for the annual BMO Vancouver Marathon on Sunday morning.

Runners will flock to the city from more than 40 countries to race in the 43rd annual marathon — a Boston qualifier and the city's only full 42.2-kilometre race — and the 25th annual half marathon.

"We're excited to welcome runners from everywhere and celebrate this really great running community we have," said Charlene Krepiakevich, executive director of the Vancouver International Marathon Society.

For their sake, cross your fingers that the weather forecast changes: it calls for 20 mm of rain.

"A little rain is not a bad thing for runners. If you're a runner, you've prepared all winter, you're kind of ready," Krepiakevich said.

The marathon society expects about 60,000 people will go through their health, sports and lifestyle expo at Canada Place throughout the weekend. It opened Thursday and is free to the public.

Those who aren't running are also encouraged to come out and cheer. Considering the course snakes through 17 neighbourhoods, it might be more fun than attempting to drive. EMILY JACKSON/METRO

Firework teams from Japan, France and the U.S. will make Vancouver's beaches and skies sparkle bright for this summer's 24th annual Celebration of Light fireworks festival.

Held at Sunset Beach and English Bay, the week-long festival will take place Saturday July 26 (U.S.A.), Wednesday July 30 (France) and conclude Saturday Aug. 2 (Japan).

The corresponding sixth annual SHOREfest will feature a number of free musical performances, including The Sheepdogs at Sunset Beach. Past acts have included The Trews, The Barenaked Ladies and Mother Mother.

"The Celebration of Lights showcases Vancouver on the world stage and continues to be one of Vancouver's best-known and most popular summer festivals," said Mayor Gregor Robertson in a press release.

UBC. RCMP investigates financial irregularities at faculty of dentistry

RCMP are investigating possible financial irregularities at the University of B.C.'s faculty of dentistry after a whistleblower tipped off administration last summer.

The investigation centres on the general practise residency, a program designed to give dental graduates extra experience.

The program consists of 11 students working at various clinics across the province.

An internal audit conducted last summer confirmed there were financial irregularities, and UBC staff forwarded their findings to RCMP in February 2014, sparking the investigation.

"We have to follow very careful due process," said Lucie McNeill, a spokeswoman for the university, about the length of time between the initial report and when the university contacted police.

"We wanted to make sure our services could continue," she said.

The university was quick to credit their whistleblower program, which offers students and staff the chance to report any concerns to administration.

"This came to light from somebody giving leaders at UBC the tip. That is really good news and says a lot about our employees," said McNeill.

"It shows they care about the administration of public money," she added.

McNeill could not say how much money is involved in the investigation, nor what the possible irregularities could be — such as misappropriation of funds or fraud.

However, she says the internal auditors believe it is less than the $4-to-$5-million range given by the RCMP in previous media reports.

The RCMP could not be reached for comment.

Shootings test U.S. 'stand your ground' laws

Intruders lured into fatal encounters. Two recent cases involve people who said they were afraid of homes being burgled again

A Montana man is accused of setting a trap and blasting a shotgun into his garage, killing a 17-year-old German exchange student. A Minnesota man is convicted of lying in wait in his basement for two teenagers and killing them during a break-in.

The two recent cases have intensified the debate about America's so-called "stand your ground" laws: Do laws that allow private citizens to protect their property also let them set a trap and wait for someone to kill?

In Montana, Markus Kaarma told investigators his home had been burgled twice before Sunday's shooting death of Diren Dede. The night of the shooting, Kaarma and his partner, Janelle Pflager, left their garage door open and Pflager left her purse in the garage, prosecutors said.

When they heard sounds, Kaarma said he took his shotgun and without speaking fired four times. Dede was hit in the head and the arm.

In Minnesota, Byron Smith, a 65-year-old retiree, was convicted of premeditated murder Tuesday in the shooting of Nick Brady, 17, and Haile Kifer, 18, after the cousins broke into his home in 2012. Smith's attorney said burglars had previously hit his client's home, and he was afraid.

Prosecutors said Smith moved his truck to make it look as though no one was home, and waited in the basement with food, water and two guns.

What the laws say

- Montana's law says a person is justified in using deadly force to prevent an assault or a forcible felony.
- Minnesota law allows the use of deadly force in a home to prevent a felony, but it must be considered a reasonable response.

1,000 cases? Tories refuse to budge on inquiry over missing aboriginal women

The Conservative government is resisting renewed calls for an inquiry into murdered and missing aboriginal women and girls despite a media report that suggests there may be hundreds more cases than previously thought.

Public Safety Minister Steven Blaney was asked Thursday to finally call a inquiry in light of a report by the Aboriginal Peoples Television Network that Canada may be home to more than 1,000 cases of murdered and missing women.

His answer, in short: no.

Instead, Blaney launched a partisan broadside against the NDP's refusal to support the government's budget bill, which includes a five-year, $25-million renewal of money aimed at stopping violence against aboriginal women and girls.

Ford silent as he heads to rehab

'He's a broken man.' But mayor will apparently remain in the running for October's election

Down, but not out

- Despite his announced leave from both the mayor's office and his re-election campaign, Ford will apparently remain in the running for October's municipal vote.
- Deputy Mayor Norm Kelly, who has been doing most of Ford's job since council stripped him of most of his mayoral duties last year, has been left firmly in charge.

Mayor Rob Ford left home Thursday, hours after announcing plans to take leave to deal with his substance-abuse problems amid a triple dose of scandalizing revelations that have raised further questions about his fitness for office.

Confronted with reports of a recent video showing him allegedly smoking crack cocaine, an audio recording of the mayor spewing profanities and making lewd comments about a fellow mayoral contender, and witness accounts of him snorting cocaine at a city nightclub, Ford said he would be seeking "immediate help."

"He's a broken man. He's got a lot of demons," Ford's lawyer Dennis Morris told The Canadian Press. "He realizes that he's not well and in need of help. He's just running off the rails. That's something he now appreciates."

Ford did not speak to reporters in front of his home as he left in a two-car convoy Thursday morning.

A private plane flew him to Chicago, Global TV reported, while CBC cited his brother as saying Ford would be spending 30 days at an unspecified addictions facility.

At a news conference Thursday, an emotional Doug Ford said facing your problems and deciding to seek help is not easy. "I told Rob that everyone knows someone who has faced these challenges and I know they will wish him well and a speedy recovery," he said.

The scandal-plagued mayor's latest woes began late Wednesday, with a trio of damaging newspaper reports.

The Globe and Mail said a drug dealer had shown two of its reporters video of Ford allegedly smoking what was said to be crack in the basement of his sister's home early Saturday morning.

Then, in an audio recording from a bar obtained by the Toronto Sun, Ford is heard making anti-gay remarks, using an offensive ethnic slur, and saying he would like to "jam" rival candidate Karen Stintz.

The mayor said he didn't remember the events but confirmed being at the bar, the Sun reported.

In a third report, the Toronto Star published details of "two nights of utter debauchery" involving Ford at a Toronto nightclub a few weeks ago.

At one point, the paper said, Ford almost got into an altercation with pop idol Justin Bieber, who jokingly asked the mayor if he had any crack cocaine with him.

Dylan was someone who noticed things.

His mom was someone who didn't.

One Friday in January was a day like any other until...

Music!

The high notes soar to the ceiling. The low notes swoop to the floor. All the notes swirl and sweep around the blur of people rushing here and rushing there. The music is telling an exciting story. It makes the hairs on the back of Dylan's neck tickle.

"Mom, wait!"

The man with the violin sways this way and that. His fingers move quickly. His bow dances across the strings. The skittering notes make Dylan want to dance too. Then the music slows and the man's eyes close as if the music is carrying him from bustle– bustle–bustle to somewhere far, far away.

"Please, Mom? Can't we stop? Please?"
If only they could listen for even a minute!
"Not today."

Man vs. environment

"The reality is that you can take the best people in the world and — after a long period of time — things will start to slowly break down because people are unhappy with the environment..."

Robotics engineer Simon Engler has survived the rigors of a Mars mission without ever setting his space boots down on the Red Planet.

As part of a NASA-funded simulation, Engler hunkered down inside a two-storey dome on the northern slope of the Mauna Loa volcano. There, he and his fellow guinea pigs encountered "red-flag problems" related to inter-planetary exploration.

The HI-SEAS crew battled bouts of separation anxiety, yucky pre-packaged diets and stinky feet during the four-month social experiment staged on a barren lava field. It explored the emotional strain of being isolated for months or years at a time, with others.

"It's not a normal environment for a human to live in for a long period of time," Engler told Metro. "The reality is that you can take the best people in the world and — after a long period of time — things will start to slowly break down because people are unhappy with the environment.

"NASA really needs to know how to mitigate it before they actually take this mission."

Life on Hawaii's Big Island may sound like reality TV. But don't tell that to Engler, who sloughs off the much-publicized Mars One project for its "questionable financial responsibilities."

Engler, who at the time was a PhD student at the University of Calgary, says he pitched a robotic companion project as part of the application process for HI-SEAS, and was chosen from a pool of 700 applicants.

He describes his colleagues as brainy, "astronaut-like" folks who specialize in fields such as nanotechnology, geology and physics. They were a mixed bag of Type-A and Type–B personalities, which was supposedly the right mix during the dress rehearsal.

"If you have a balance between personality types then things will work out in the long run," said Engler, who is now helping out with Round 2 of the Mars simulation.

People problems aside, human settlers will also need to contend with supremely harsh environmental conditions on the freeze-dried planet. Hyper-arid soil, wicked dust storms and seasonal geysers provide formidable challenges.

The average temperature hangs around -53 C, although lows can be twice as chilly, according to the Canadian Space Agency. And spacesuits are needed to prevent the astronauts' skin and lungs from exploding due to low air pressure.

Finding water remains another massive hurdle for many researchers, as it's deemed a key indicator to whether the planet is hospitable to life.

"You're unlikely to find flowing water on the surface unless it was salt-rich. But even then it would be incredibly rare," said Chris Hugenholtz from the U of C. "That water's going to have to come from underground."

He noted there's plenty of evidence of "water-ice", or water in the form of ice, in the polar caps. But thirsty space explorers will also have to keep an eye out for spectacular geysers, which stem from a build-up of carbon dioxide gas below the south polar ice sheet. The jet-like eruptions are known to spew sand and dust hundreds of feet into the air.

Dust devils are known to blanket the entire planet over days, which Hugenholtz noted could impede space crews' solar-powered gear.

"There are some bizarre things occurring on the surface that they're going to have to deal with if they're in those more polar regions of Mars looking for water," he said.

Located at about 8,000 feet elevation, the Mars-like HI-SEAS habitat was free of cultural norms, endangered species and lush greenery. It featured a two-storey dome, enclosing a volume of 13,570 cubic feet. COURTESY OF DR. SIAN PROCTOR

A human expedition to Mars is proposed within the next 15 years. In the meantime, there are programs in place that attempt to recreate the conditions of the Red Planet. For Day 3 of our feature, Metro spoke with a guinea pig about his 'mission' and a professor about possible governance in deep space

LIVING UNDER MARTIAN LAW

Move over, Martians — humans are coming to town. But how would early space crusaders organize after putting footprints on the Red Planet? Paul Fairie, who teaches municipal governance at the University of Calgary, was nice enough to play along and offer some realpolitik answers to hypothetical questions:

METRO: Do the first Mars occupiers need to establish a local government? What have we learned from Lord of the Flies?

PF: If the first settlers were all initially astronauts and therefore mostly from a military background, there probably wouldn't be a need for local government right away, since they'd have a chain of command in place already. However, once a generation or two had passed and the population was no longer primarily military, I'd expect that they'd want to establish a local government to take care of basic local needs that couldn't just be completely dictated from Earth, like the fair distribution of resources and making sure society is functional. Otherwise, the colony would run the risk of being completely dictatorial, with us Earth-bound humans dictating laws to second- and third-generation Martians.

METRO: What's the best type of governing structure for this situation? Plutocracy?

PF: I imagine something of a two-stage process. First, a proper non-democracy where military ranks dictated who had power. This would work well with a small group of military-trained astronauts. After a while, we'd probably see the need for a local government for self-regulatory matters. At this point, we'd probably have a democracy — luckily the settlers would have the benefit of hindsight. What would be really exciting here is that the form the government could take would be quite unpredictable, because they would have the rare opportunity to make a completely new government.

HI-SEAS crew engineer Simon Engler used the Husky robot while testing machine operation in bulky spacesuits. He also explored how robotic companions ease loneliness. COURTESY OF DR. YAJAIRA SIERRA-SASTRE

METRO: How should Mars residents be taxed? Would an Alberta-style flat tax be an alien concept?

PF: Taxation would be a tricky one for a while since most of the resources will have to be brought in from Earth. If they were using an Earthling currency, would they be buying products and services from each other? Would they create their own currency? If so, how would they decide the initial allotment of funds? At least until the colony was big enough, I'd have to imagine a bartering economy would spring up for basic goods and services ("I'll trade you a hair cut for some Martian key lime pie."), and perhaps a social obligation to contribute some labour to the settlement might spring up before a currency economy would.

Doomed ferry video released

Tragic end. Video recovered from one of the nearly 220 declared dead; many still missing

Soon after the ferry began to tilt, there was nervous laughter, jokes about the Titanic and talk of selfies and Facebook posts from the doomed high school students huddled below deck.

But the lighthearted atmosphere soon turned serious as the listing worsened. Fear began building, and one student asked, "Am I really going to die?"

The shaky video — at times poignant and heartbreaking as the teens said last words to their loved ones — was found on the cellphone belonging to 17-year-old Park Su-hyeon when his body was recovered after the disaster on the morning of April 16 off South Korea.

The boy's father, Park Jong-dae, provided it Thursday to The Associated Press, saying he wanted to show the world the conditions aboard the Sewol as it sank. He earlier released it to select South Korean media.

About 220 bodies, mostly from inside the submerged vessel, have been recovered. More than 80 per cent of the victims were students from a high school in Ansan, south of Seoul, on their way to the tourist island of Jeju for a school trip. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

'No Arctic Oil'. Activists detained after skirmish with Russian tanker

Dutch police say they detained 31 Greenpeace activists who attempted to prevent a Russian tanker carrying the first oil produced by a new offshore platform in the Arctic Ocean from mooring at Rotterdam Port on Thursday.

The environmental group sent two ships, plus a fleet of rubber rafts, paragliders and activists on shore, to meet the Mikhail Ulyanov, a tanker chartered by Russia's state-controlled oil company, Gazprom OAO.

Activists painted the words "No Arctic Oil" in white letters on the hull of the Russian tanker. After several hours, the Ulyanov was able to dock safely.

Greenpeace opposes oil production inside the Arctic Circle, warning of the danger of a spill in a pristine and difficult-to-reach area — as well as the threat of worsening global warming caused by using fossil fuels. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sparks fly over Tories' electoral reform bill

Fair Elections Act.
Proposed changes to law will cause hundreds of thousands to lose right to vote, critics charge

Among the bill's provisions

- Voters who come to polls without documents can't use voter information cards as fall-back ID.
- New limitations are proposed on citizens vouching for the identity of others.

The Conservative bill to tighten up election laws is in the final stages of review at a House of Commons committee, and things are getting ugly.

After long hours of scrutiny of the Fair Elections Act's many clauses, only two technical amendments by the opposition had been approved by Thursday afternoon.

New Democrat MP David Christopherson's frustration boiled over when the committee rejected a proposal to ensure voter information cards are marked prominently to indicate they are not considered valid ID.

The proposed Act has eliminated the cards as a fall-back ID for voters who discover they don't have the right documents when they show up to vote.

"We know, and Canadians know, that this is all about trying to get the fix in for the Conservatives in every way they can, and that voter suppression is alive and well in the government of Canada," said Christopherson.

The Conservatives countered that the chief electoral officer already has authority over the markings on voter identification cards, and the NDP amendment was not needed.

The opposition has argued that hundreds of thousands of voters, including First Nations, the homeless and students, will be disenfranchised by eliminating the use of the voter cards, as well as by new limitations on citizens vouching for the identity of others. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Sure, I'll move for a new job... for a 20% raise

Oh, plus ... all moving expenses and a $100,000 non-taxable, interest-free loan

A new survey suggests fewer than half of Canadians are willing to move for employment opportunities — a finding that could shed light on why companies may instead be turning to temporary foreign workers.

The survey, conducted by Ipsos Reid for the Canadian Employee Relocation Council, asked more than 2,000 Canadians whether they'd move either within their provinces or to other parts of the country for a job.

Only 10 per cent of respondents indicated an eagerness to move, while a third said they could be persuaded for the right job and the right incentives.

The top incentive selected by those respondents who said they would consider a move to another part of the country is a 20 per cent raise in pay, plus all moving expenses being covered by the employer.

More than half of respondents also said governments could play a role in enticing them to move by permitting employers to provide a tax-free housing allowance for up to six months to allow them to settle in to a new location.

Almost half said employers should also be allowed to provide non-taxable, interest-free loans of up to $100,000 for the purchase of a home in the new location.

Is this a Loblaws or a Shoppers? Soon it may be hard to tell

A pedestrian walks past the Loblaws grocery store and Joe Fresh outlet located in the former Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto on Thursday. Robo-advisors. The young will take financial advice from a robot: Expert

The thought of putting a computer in charge of your financial decisions may make some uneasy, but if you do your banking online, as well as buy groceries and set up dates, why not also receive financial advice over the Internet?

That appears to be the thinking behind a field garnering a lot of interest in the U.S., and one which the president of the Investor Education Fund in Toronto says reflects the fact that younger generations are changing the way they interact with every market place.

Colorado

Banks still paranoid about legal pot

A Colorado plan to set up the world's first financial system for marijuana cleared its first hurdle in the state Legislature Thursday, despite deep reservations from supporters that the plan will work.

The bill approved 9-2 by a House committee is prompted by frustration with recent marijuana banking guidance from the U.S. Treasury Department.

The measure would allow state-licensed marijuana businesses to create a financial co-op, sort of an uninsured credit union.

"We really do not believe that that will work," said Don Childers, head of the Colorado Bankers Association. "It is flatly illegal to deal in any illegal substance or any proceeds therefrom," said Childers, who testified that the banking guidance issued in February only made banks less likely to accept risky marijuana clients.

'A BOLD AND HISTORIC MOVE'

THE METRO LIST

1 Racism gets a smack down. Sacramento Mayor Kevin Johnson called it "a defining moment in history" and Al Sharpton "a bold and historic move." Just months into his new role as NBA Commissioner, Adam Silver cemented his legacy already by banning LA Clippers owner Donald Sterling from the league after his racist remarks.

2 Selfie with Jim Carrey. When the A-list actor landed at Peterborough Airport Friday, he showed his down to earth side, posing in pictures on the tarmac with a bunch of high school students and in a selfie tweeted by student Zach Premate. The only thing that would have made it more epic is if Jerry Seinfeld was in the pic, too — he was in Peterborough a day later at the same airport.

3 Runaway blimp. It was the talk of the town this week as a two-storey, 21-metre-long Budweiser blimp in the shape of a hockey goal light broke loose from its tether in Saint John, N.B. Yep, this must have been a tricky one for Transport Canada, who was in hot (air?) pursuit. The blimp eventually landed in the woods northeast of the city, no doubt feeling a bit deflated.

4 Let's go Raptors. Coming off their first road playoff victory in 13 years in Brooklyn, the Raptors took care of business at home in a nail-biter Wednesday night, and now can close things out in Game 6 Friday in Brooklyn. Everything is on the line for an amazing, courageous team having a Cinderella season.

5 Stop making sense. Parks Canada announced plans to install Wi-Fi hotspots in up to 50 parks this year. So next time you're enjoying some solitude in the woods, you can stop and tell the world on Twitter, Instagram, Facebook and Snapchat.

6 National Canadian Film Day. REEL Canada had a novel idea: to do a National Canadian Film Day to draw attention to all the amazing films being made in this country. So Wednesday, people took to social media to talk about homegrown cinematic gems using the hashtag #CANFILMDAY. Beautiful thing. My fave two: Meatballs and The Sweet Hereafter.

7 Another one bites the Cyber Dust. Hailed as the Snapchat of words, the Cyber Dust app allows you to send a message to someone that will disappear forever 30 seconds after being opened by the recipient. Yes, you are now the James Bond of texting. Go wild.

8 Superhero supermovie. Awesome superhero fun, as Warner Bros. studio announced plans to make a Justice League movie. Superman, Batman, Wonder Woman, Aquaman, Flash and Green Lantern together in one movie? My goodness, I'm in superhero heaven.

9 RoFo back on the crack? Twitter blew up after Ford was caught on tape again allegedly smoking crack cocaine. He has announced a leave of absence from his duties as mayor to get treatment for his addiction. May this be his rock bottom, so he finally gets the real help he needs.

He's got a need for Speed

Q&A

Man tries to collect every VHS copy of '90s classic

Twenty-six-year-old Ryan Beitz is a collector of sorts: He aims to own every VHS copy of the 1994 classic Speed. So stirring is Beitz's pointless task that it compelled the movie's screenwriter Graham Yost to use these touching words: "Other than world peace and ending hunger, I can think of no greater cause than what this one brave and visionary man has embarked upon." The great feat doesn't end there, though. Metro chats to the zany collector about The World Speed Project:

Obviously what you're doing is a waste of time, so why are you so committed? There's no real good reason for it. I'm dedicated only because it's totally pointless and stupid. I'm totally dedicated to the uselessness if it.

Does it annoy you that people are trying to sabotage your goal by holding onto copies? People can try to thwart me but they are going to die and then I'll have my copy.

Any words for the haters? I would say to them keep doing it because whether you love or hate the World Speed Project but especially if you hate it, you're a part of it.

Do you play each copy to check it works? No, definitely not, but I did at first. Actually it paid off this one time because there was a copy of the Flintstones that was in a Speed case with the Speed label. But I figured that one out and I'll find that other copy.

Among the things that add tedium to the absurd commuting times in some of our larger cities is that they tend to be caused by similar snafus. A blown tire. A fender bender. Every now and again an overturned truck of marbles or bees will spice things up a bit.

What we never get is a gang of adorable lion cubs and their watchful lionesses waking up after a long snooze on a stretch of sun-heated asphalt. For that kind of delay, you're going to need your daily commute to take you through South Africa's Kruger National Park, which we assume is named after the claws of those who live there. Spinning the same old story

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

The Amazing Spider-Man 2 is a rehash of the origin story. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Fresh out of high school, Peter Parker (Andrew Garfield) is being pulled in two different directions. He loves Gwen Stacy (Emma Stone) but is troubled by a promise he made to her late father (Dennis Leary) that he would never let anything bad happen to her. Meanwhile, Peter's old friend Harry Osborn (Dane De Haan), heir to the Oscorp fortune, is battling a hereditary disease he thinks can be cured with a dose of Spider-Man's blood and Max Dillon (Jamie Foxx), a low level Oscorp electrical engineer, has an accident that rewires him into Electro, a villain with the power to control electricity.

The Amazing Spider-Man 2.

Franchise needs a more exciting story to keep the Reel Guys caught in its web

Richard: Mark, at two-and-a-half hours, the new Spider-Man movie is almost equal parts action and story.

The first 15 minutes contains not one, but two wild action sequences that'll make your eyeballs dance.

If you haven't had your fill of special effects for the week, your thirst will be quenched early on.

Then the onslaught of story begins.

Jammed packed with plot, bad guys and lots and lots of moony-eyed love, it's the busiest superhero movie in recent memory.

Did you get caught up in the film's web?

Mark: No, Richard, the movie got caught in its own web. Too much of the film is like the last one, which was very good, but do we need to rehash the origin story yet again?

The action sequences are good, and they'd better be, because the plot and characters are feeling kind of tired by now.

Not that there aren't good things in the movie.

I liked Jamie Foxx's villain, who was sadly sympathetic in a Frankenstein kind of way. And Dane DeHaan, as tortured Oscorp heir Harry Osborn, has the best scenes in the picture, with an otherworldly look that reminded me of a British fascist circa 1936 or Tilda Swinton's illegitimate son; I'm not sure which.

RC: I thought he kind of looks like the Evil Annoying Orange with a better haircut. To each his own.

He does have some of the best scenes in the film, and this is a movie with several well-crafted dramatic moments.

Too bad most of them feel like they're lifted from another movie and dropped into this one as placeholders for the action sequences.

Peter Parker is shedding tears over his love life one minute, swinging on webby vines through the streets the next.

Both tones are well executed, but they often feel forced together.

MB: The movie seems more like a pastiche than a sequel.

Sally Field, bless her Norma Rae heart, invests her part with the intensity of a Eugene O'Neill play.

Jamie Foxx makes a sympathetic villain in the Frankenstein mode even though he's made up like a rogue member of Blue Man Group. But Richard, why is Spidey so cocky this go round? His awkwardness is usually part of his charm.

RC: That's more from the comic books.

The Sam Raimi Spider-Man movies didn't use Spidey's sarcasm, but on the pages of the comics he wasn't shy to let loose with some trash talking.

MB: The movie is watchable and intermittently entertaining, but the franchise really needs to invigorate itself to keep me caught in its web.

The must-see films of summer

Sorry, summer moviegoers, but this May through August you have only three superhero movies to choose from. What's worse, only two of those are from Marvel — and only one of those is part of the official Marvel Cinematic Universe. Instead you'll have a treasure trove of alternative blockbusters featuring bitter witches, mythic beefcakes, sky-high lizards, giant robots and giant turtles.

Godzilla (May 16)

High-concept premise: The fire-breathing, rampaging lizard of Japanese cinema is back — only it's definitely not the campy 1998 one that no one likes because it's just awful.

Superpower: Its cast is nothing to sneeze at: Bryan Cranston, Elizabeth Olsen, Sally Hawkins, David Strathairn and … holy crap, Juliette Binoche is in this? The tone looks serious. In fact, not unlike the original Japanese version of Godzilla from 1954, which is in fact quite grim.

Weakness: Director Gareth Edwards last tried to subvert the monster movie with Monsters, which ended up being packed with indie clichés. This could get too dour. Also, let's not forget, this is still freakin' Godzilla.

METRO CUSTOM PUBLISHING

Spring is a good time to rebuild your credit

Jump-start process with an auto loan

This time of year brings to mind spring cleaning. The same approach to your credit wouldn't hurt either.

First, start with your credit rating. You can obtain a copy of your personal report without it having an effect on your score. This service is offered by both Equifax and TransUnion. It is important to check both agencies as not all credit is reported by one bureau or the next.

Examine your report. Ensure you know who has looked at your file and you have authorized each credit inquiry. Confirm all credit activity and balances. This is a good way to prevent credit misuse or fraud.

For those wanting to re-establish their credit, it requires a bit more work.

"You have to actively work at rebuilding your credit," says Darcy Greig, director of special finance at Langley Auto Loans.

She suggests jump-starting the process with an auto loan. Vehicle loans are especially effective as they establish a larger loan and they report regularly to the credit bureau.

Greig has built her reputation by helping clients navigate the pitfalls of the credit approval process.

SHUTTERSTOCK

Maleficent (May 30)

High-concept premise: Sleeping Beauty gets remade, but from the perspective of the villain who turns into a dragon at the end.

Superpower: Maleficent is one of Disney's most visually striking villains, and Angelina Jolie is probably hammy enough to bring the menace and not make her too sympathetic.

Weakness: Let's hope this doesn't turn into yet another funereal, serious twist on cinema that used to be fun.

Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles (August 8)

High-concept premise: The '80s pizza-eating reptiles finally get a reboot after the 2007 film TMNT didn't quite bring them back.

Superpower: Nostalgia. Marketing budget.

Weakness: Like all live-action versions of the franchise — including the ones from the '90s this looks too serious a film considering it's about turtles who eat junk food.

Edge of Tomorrow (June 6)

High-concept premise: Tom Cruise, 51, plays an alien-battling soldier caught in a time loop. Emily Blunt is also there.

Superpower: This is based on a beloved science-fiction novel, All You Need Is Kill, by Hiroshi Sakurazaka, though they've changed the title.

Weakness: Are they insane? All You Need Is Kill is a GREAT title. The new one sounds like an Epcot ride — or an Isaac Asimov book that doesn't feature alien fighting.

Jupiter Ascending (July 18)

High-concept premise: The Wachowskis tanked with Speed Racer and Cloud Atlas. So, naturally, they've been given another $150 million to do another nutty idea.

Superpower: The Wachowskis (and the studio) are no doubt gambling on stars Mila Kunis, Channing Tatum and Eddie Redmayne to pull people through the weirdness.

Weakness: Speed Racer is visually unique and Cloud Atlas ambitious, but both are kind of drags.

Revealing the abstract Under the Skin

Experimental film. Director Jonathan Glazer's vision needs to be enjoyed as an experience of consciousness

CHRIS ALEXANDER
scene@metronews.ca

Scarlett Johansson is a humanoid alien vampire in a world she doesn't understand in Under the Skin. CONTRIBUTED

There's a striking sequence in director Jonathan Glazer's 2004 psychodrama Birth in which his camera holds tight on the porcelain visage of actress Nicole Kidman. As opera swells on the soundtrack, we continue to hold while observing her run the gamut of emotion, climaxing with a shot of a single crystal tear streaking her cheek…

It's a moment of poetry, wordless and beautiful and its ominous grace is amplified throughout every minute of Glazer's latest film, Under the Skin. The movie stars Scarlett Johansson as a humanoid alien vampire, driving through the streets of Edinburgh hunting for viral men whom she seduces and harvests as food for her planet. Or something. The picture is sparse on dialogue and narrative clarity and that's exactly what makes it such a profound — and disturbing — cinematic experience.

"I think of it as an experimental film," Glazer says.

"There is no mastermind approach towards daring the audience. It's more just the nature of this particular story that is challenging. What is challenging, I think, is once you commit to her experience, you're looking at it through her lens and in doing so, the film has to be told in the same perspective. So I think it's demanding, but it's like anything: If you're open to it, then hopefully you'll enjoy the ride. If you're not, then you won't."

Quoted

"I think its intention is to talk to the viewer at a level of consciousness."

Director Jonathan Glazer on Under the Skin

Under The Skin is nothing if not divisive. Impossible to market (Is it a science fiction piece? A horror film? Existential drama?), the film is an absolutely singular experience and aside from Glazer's dedication to the abstract, it's Johansson's remarkable, uninhibited turn (she is often unclothed) as the outsider adrift in a world she/it does not understand that makes it so compelling.

"That really is just about casting," says the filmmaker.

"It's about looking out there and seeing who the right person for the character is and for Birth it was Nicole and for this one, it was Scarlett. She went into it with her eyes open and she understood that she was dealing with a character that had a bravery that needed to be matched by hers as an actress. You can't pull back from that. If you pull back from that then you're pulling back from the telling of the story."

Reminiscent of heady '70s films like Nicolas Roeg's The Man Who Fell From Earth, Under the Skin is a subjective experience. Because it never overplays its hand or offers much in the way of exposition, each viewer will react to it differently. Such was its creator's intent. "I think its intention is to talk to the viewer at a level of consciousness. We bypass the intellect when we listen to music or when we look at a painting. I think film is a fantastic medium to be able to do the same. In how it's trying to represent something kind of unimaginable — this infinite and alien entity — it's not something for words, really. It shouldn't be explained away. Our intention was to protect its alienness, to remain inscrutable from beginning to end."

24 will Live Another Day

London calling. With a 12-episode miniseries about to premiere, 24's executive producers bring Jack Bauer's world of intrigue to the U.K.

NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

Jack Bauer is back. After four years off the air, the action series 24 returns with a 12-episode miniseries, 24: Live Another Day. We tried to pry some info out of executive producers Manny Coto and Evan Katz about the new story and what may be next for Jack. Let's just say they held up under interrogation.

How does it differ approaching 12 episodes instead of 23 or 24?
Manny Coto: It's easier in the sense that it's half the work, but it's also challenging in the sense that the stories are more concentrated in 12 episodes. There's less room for wiggle. In a 24-episode season, there were episodes that were transition episodes. There were episodes where not as much happened as in other episodes. But in this season, every episode has to be an A episode, has to be a premiere episode. There's no taking-us-from-one-story-to-the-next episode. It's 12 episodes of high points. In this season, we really just pressed the pedal down hard and went all the way for what we're doing.
Evan Katz: Pedal to the metal.
Coto: Right. I just didn't want to say the cliché.

Is this an example of the effect of successful cable shows, which have shorter seasons?
Coto: I don't really think that was the idea. This is kind of what they wanted. We were told, "Let's do a 12-episode thing." I personally would've gone to 24, but I'm the only person apparently in the room who would've done that.
Katz: I would not have.
Coto: Evan would not have. I liked the original format. However, this is something that has worked astoundingly well. But we're not doing a cable show. It's 24, but it just happens to be 12 episodes. We do still have a way to cover a full day. It will be 12 hours out of a 24-hour period, but each episode is in real-time.

Kiefer Sutherland's Jack is back in 24: Live Another Day. GLOBAL

Air time

24: Live Another Day premieres May 5 at 8 p.m. ET/PT on Global.

How are you going about incorporating how the world has changed since Season 8, especially recent developments in the intelligence industry?
Katz: There are a couple of things that have happened in the world in the last four years since the show went off, and that is one of them. We'll put it this way: events have offered us some great and real-feeling story possibilities. In other words, we can't tell you.

A change of scenery?

What about the decision to set it in London?
"It was a way to bring back the series in a bold and different way, and it reflected the character's exile at the end of Season 8. I mean, he fled the country and is in exile. And there's something exciting about seeing Jack Bauer racing through the streets of London. It's a completely different environment. Jack's a very American hero, and it's kind of the old "ugly American in a foreign country." (laughs) This time the American is running around with a gun and blowing things up. We're inflicting Jack on London." says Katz.

Geldof's death linked to use of heroin: Police

Heroin likely played a role in the death of British model and television personality Peaches Geldof, authorities said Thursday.

Detective Chief Inspector Paul Fotheringham of the Kent and Essex Serious Crime Directorate told an inquest into the death of the second daughter of Live Aid organizer Bob Geldof that a post-mortem examination was inconclusive, prompting further tests. In a brief hearing, Fotheringham said the results on the 25-year-old confirmed the presence of the drug.

"There was recent use of heroin and the levels identified were likely to have played a role in her death," he said.

Geldof's husband, Thomas Cohen, found her on April 7 after returning home from a visit to his parents.

"Thomas entered the property and went upstairs thinking that Peaches may have been sleeping." Fotheringham said. "Thomas then located Peaches in a spare bedroom and it was obvious to him that she was deceased.

"She was located on the edge of a bed with one leg hanging down to the floor with the other leg tucked underneath her; she was slumped forward across the bed."

Fotheringham said that even though Geldof had spent much of that weekend alone, she had been in contact with friends and family.

"All of the friends and family who had contact with Peaches during this period describe how she seemed her normal self and was making plans for the future, including booking a family outing for her sons the following weekend," Fotheringham said. "There was no cause for any concern."

The story offers a sad echo of the death of Geldof's mother, television presenter Paula Yates, who died of a drug overdose in 2000 when her daughter was 11.

James claims LiLo broke into his hotel room at 3 a.m.

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

Remember Lindsay Lohan's bang list? Maybe it wasn't so much a list of guys she had slept with as it was a list of guys who'd read her bedtime stories after she followed them around for a while. That's what James Franco claims happened to him.

Franco never actually slept with LiLo — they just made out a little, he told Howard Stern (via Gawker). "We were at this hotel during a very dark period of her history," he says.

"It seemed pretty damn clear that she liked me. I'd come home late to the hotel and she'd come find me. I knew which room she was in and I'd see through the window, like, 'Oh, there's another party at Lindsay's,' and she would come out to the pool area and find me.

"She even broke into my room one time because she was so at home there, I guess they just gave her the key. And so 3 in the morning I was on the couch, and I open my eyes and there's Lindsay in my room at 3 a.m. and it's like, 'OK, what do I do now?' I read her a story. I was in school, so I was like, 'All right, maybe I'll get a little homework done so I'll read her a story.'"

Franco may be the first famous gentleman to go on Howard Stern to brag about not sleeping with a beautiful woman. Lindsay was apparently touched by the attention she paid him, though — she continued to meet up with him whenever she could.

While at a friend's wedding in New Brunswick last weekend, I found my roots in a bowl of homemade seafood chowder.

Growing up in Nova Scotia, a recipe of potatoes and just about anything from the ocean was more than a touristy treat in my house, its creation was a family tradition.

There were at least six different versions, from three generations, served at our gatherings. What they all had in common was a creamy consistency, which always caused trouble when it came to a wine match.

I'm in the white camp when it comes to chowder. No matter the recipe, the outcome is all about subtle flavours. The dark berry weight and forward tannins found in most glasses of red wine doesn't do the marriage (in your mouth) any favours.

Whites like those made from pinot grigio, unoaked chardonnay and sauvignon blanc work best. Chile's 2012 Santa Rita Reserva Sauvignon Blanc ($13.95 - $14.99) is fresh and tropical, with zesty citrus fruit and acidity that makes it a perfect partner with any chowder's cream and fish schtick. PRICES REFLECT RANGE ACROSS COUNTRY. 1. Cut the beans in half and boil them in salted water for 3 minutes. Refresh in cold water to retain their crunch and bright green colour.

Ingredients

- 6 handfuls (300 g) green beans, stalk ends trimmed
- 250 g rice stick noodles
- 1/2 cup roasted peanuts, roughly chopped
- 3 tbsp roughly chopped coriander
- 1 tbsp sesame seeds, toasted
- 2 cups bean sprouts

Dressing

- 1 tbsp sesame oil
- 2 tbsp grapeseed oil
- 2 tsp fish sauce
- 1/2 tsp salt
- ground black pepper

To serve

- lime wedges

2. Drop the rice noodles into a large pot of boiling water. Remove the pot from the heat immediately and allow to stand and cool for 10 minutes or longer. Drain the noodles then rinse in cold water.

3. Put the beans and cooked, drained noodles in a large serving bowl with the roasted peanuts, coriander, sesame seeds and bean sprouts.

4. Make the dressing by pouring sesame oil, grapeseed oil and fish sauce in a jar and shaking. Toss the dressing through the noodles and season to taste with salt and pepper.

5. Serve as a salad at room temperature or toss in a hot pan for 2-3 minutes for a stir fry side dish to serve with meats. Garnish with lime wedges to serve. WATCH THE ANNABEL LANGBEIN FREE RANGE COOK MONDAY TO THURSDAY AT 5:30 P.M. EST, STARTING APRIL 28 ON GUSTO TV, CANADA'S NEW FOOD & LIFESTYLE CHANNEL. - 3 tbsp fish sauce
- 1 tsp soy sauce

1. Sterilize a 2-cup screw-top jar and its metal lid.

Linden: 'A change was necessary'

NHL. Canucks fire embattled head coach John Tortorella, assistant Mike Sullivan after one season

CAM TUCKER
cam.tucker@metronews.ca

Trevor Linden, the Canucks' president of hockey operations, is now steeped in the search to find a new general manager and, as of Thursday morning, a new head coach.

Following just one season, a tumultuous one that involved a three-month long fall down the Western Conference standings and ending without a berth in the Stanley Cup playoffs, head coach John Tortorella was fired Thursday, as was assistant coach Mike Sullivan.

"The more I looked at the situation, I felt that a change was necessary," said Linden.

Linden plans to retain assistant coach Glen Gulutzan, assistant coach Darryl Williams and goalie coach Roland Melanson for next season.

Torts' tenure, eventful and controversial from his opening press conference last June to his final media availability last month, is now over. The Canucks failed to make the playoffs for the first time since 2008 with a record of 36-35-11.

The club's two best offensive players, Daniel and Henrik Sedin, experienced their worst seasons in terms of production since before the 2004-05 lockout.

"I'd say, realistically, the timing will most likely be by the end of the month."

Canucks president of hockey operations Trevor Linden on hiring a new general manager

The new president and the embattled former coach apparently had their differences when it came to the style of play that should be implemented — Tortorella was criticized often for altering a fast-paced, puck-possession team into a chip-and-chase team that emphasized shot-blocking and using the Sedin twins on the penalty kill.

The two didn't exactly see eye-to-eye on the core group of players, either.

In his season-ending press conference, Tortorella called the core "stale."

"We talked about that. I don't totally agree with everything that he said. I think he's referencing a lack of push from the bottom, the lack of players that are pushing our core to be better," said Linden.

The Canucks are now a franchise in massive transition.

With the first round of the NHL Draft scheduled for June 27, Linden's biggest task ahead is to find a new general manager. Interviews, he said, will begin next week.

"I've got a very focused list," said Linden. "I'd say, realistically, the timing will most likely be by the end of the month."

Ex-Giants coach Don Hay headed back to Blazers

Don Hay, head coach of the Vancouver Giants beginning in the 2004-05 season, is on his way back to Kamloops to rejoin the Blazers.

The Giants made the announcement Thursday afternoon, confirming multiple reports from earlier in the day. Hay's tenure in Vancouver comes to an end at a time when the Giants are trying to rebuild their roster. Hay still had one more year remaining on his contract with the Giants.

He helped guide the Giants to a Memorial Cup appearance in 2006 and a national championship on home ice in 2007. He also recorded his 600th career WHL victory earlier this season, becoming only the third coach in the league's history to reach that milestone.

"Blazers owner Tom Gaglardi contacted me last week and asked for permission to speak with Don," said Giants majority owner Ron Toigo in a statement.

"I'm sure Don is looking forward to moving home and spending more time with his family and enjoying the time with his grandkids. He came here when we were a young franchise and helped develop an identity for the Giants, and showed us how to win."

In his final season, the Giants finished seventh in the Western Conference standings with a record of 32-29-7-4.

Hay rose to prominence as a head coach in the 1990s, winning back-to-back Memorial Cups with the Blazers in 1994 and 1995. CAM TUCKER/METRO

Subban snipes Habs an early series lead

NHL playoffs. Habs pull off double OT win vs. Bruins in Game 1

P.K. Subban scored in the second overtime period and Carey Price was superb in goal as the Montreal Canadiens held off the hard-charging Boston Bruins for a wild 4-3 win in the opening game of their second-round playoff series Thursday.

Subban's second power-play goal of the game came from the point through traffic at four minutes 17 seconds, silencing the sellout crowd. Matt Bartkowski was in the box for holding.

Price finished with 48 saves, while Rene Bourque and Francis Bouillon were Montreal's other goal scorers.

Reilly Smith, Torey Krug and Johnny Boychuk countered for Boston, and Tuukka Rask stopped 29 shots.

Down 2-0 after 40 minutes, Boston came on strong in the third to force overtime.

Boston threw everything it had at Price, who kept the Canadiens in it while extending the wild ride of a game. Price combined brilliance with a little luck in holding back the rampant Bruins.

A surging Boston nearly won it in the first overtime when a puck leaked through Price's pads but somehow deflected off the post through the crease. A pad save by Price saved the day later in the period, and the sprawling Montreal goalie robbed David Krejci in close minutes later.

Rask stopped Lars Eller at the other end to extend the game. Then Habs winger Brendan Gallagher cleared the puck out of the crease to keep the Bruins out. THE CANADIAN PRESS

You may have to wait a few weeks before you get the chance to put your big idea into effect. The more time you give it to percolate through your brain, the more likely it is to be an outstanding success.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Others may be obstructive today but you don't have to make an issue of it. Treat it as an opportunity to show how patient and relaxed you can be.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You will be annoyed if something holds you back today but later you will thank your lucky stars that you were forced to stay where you are. If fate conspires to keep you from something there is a reason.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Take difficulties in stride and find ways to get something constructive from them. The Sun in Taurus at this time of year has a hugely positive effect on your outlook on life.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The good news is you seem to be handling challenges well and the even better news is it won't be long before you are rewarded. Everything evens out in the end, so believe that the good times will return.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
You may be tempted to muddle through a problem and hope it all comes right in the end, and maybe it will. But wouldn't it be easier if you called on the help of an expert? Not even a Pisces can do it all. SALLY BROMPTON
